Traditional Literature Book Blog

Information and requirements for this month's book blog will come home today. Traditional Literature are stories that are told from one generation to the next. Stories such as fairytales, tall tales, folktales, myths, fables, and legends are types of Traditional Literature. These are much shorter stories than the books your child usually reads for blogging. Please read over the requirements carefully with your child and let me know if you have any questions.

This Week—We Celebrate Dr. Seuss!

- ◇ Thurs: red and white day
- ◇ Fri: PJ day and DEAR time with Mrs. Kaelin's 2nd grade class

On Friday, we will have DEAR (Drop Everything And Read) time with Mrs. Kaelin's 2nd grade class to celebrate Read Across America. Your child needs to bring in a favorite read aloud book from home. This book should take no more than 10 minutes to read aloud. Your child will read this book to his/her buddy in Mrs. Kaelin's class.

One School; One Book

Mouse and the Motorcycle by Beverly Cleary

Thurs—chapter 9

Fri—chapter 10

Your family should have continued to read a chapter a night during the snow days. If you are behind, please catch up as soon as possible.
