Math Quiz Corrections

Please read the information I am sending home about the math quiz your child took on Friday. Math is a very challenging subject and students are being taught to apply concepts to different scenarios. I am giving everyone the opportunity to make corrections on the quiz at home on Monday night (absent students will also have this opportunity). It is IMPORTANT that your child follow the requirements for corrections. If these are not followed, no credit will be given.

Please review the reading blog requirements with your child before they submit a post. Many students missed points because requirements were not followed. There is an example and list of requirements in the Reading Notebook. I will always offer editorial advice prior to posting it to all. This applies to online and hand-written posts. It is your child's responsibility to post and allow enough time for me to help with editing. We will discuss these requirements in class again this week. Thank you for your continued support!
